

Sunday, March 20th

We have had a remarkable time and it's hard to believe it's coming to an end.

Today Sunday we began the day with a Christian worship service at the Inn of the Good Samaritan. Jeff led the service with Andy, the entire group participated and we all shared bread and wine after the service, it was a pretty powerful moment.

We then drove to Masada where 1/2 the group climbed to the top, while the rest of us took a cable car. What an impressive site Masada is. The weather was once again lovely for us today as we continued to the Dead Sea where we all floated, covered in mud and read the Barrington Times. To see our local Rabbi and Minister floating side by side reading the Times was truly a wonderful sight and we have plenty of pictures to share (you can be sure)

On a not so pleasant note, we seem to be sharing the start of a stomach virus, I was hit first and now Jeff and we are so worried about the rest of the group and getting us all back to the US with this thing. Please pray that it is an isolated bit of food poisoning that will not extend beyond the two of us.

It has been a remarkable journey and one that will take months to share from the heart.

Our love to all of you back home.

Shalom,

Kathleen
